archTIS (ASX:AR9) is a Canberra based Defence SME that specialises in the design and development of products, solutions and services for secure information sharing and collaboration.

Established in 2006, we designed and built one of the first multi-level information sharing platforms accredited to host TOP SECRET information by the United States and Australian departments of Defence.

It enables the secure sharing of classified information and allows for multiple recipients to automatically access different versions of a document or file in line with their respective security clearances, and the document's security classification, country and organisational releasability.

This Australian sovereign capability is now available as an accredited PROTECTED secure collaboration cloud service called Kojensi Gov.

Publicly listed Australian company (ASX: AR9)
